FELICITATIONS, POST NO. 237

Pleasanton Post, No. 237, American Legion, is receiving the congratulations of other posts in California and the public generally in the bay region upon the completion and dedication of their beautiful and commodious Memorial Building, a gift from the county in appreciation of the members' services in the World War and their activity since the close of hostilities to purify politics and uphold the hands of good government everywhere.

Sunday afternoon hundreds of visitors were shown through the building of perfect appointments. Distinguished guests were there to make the day memorial in the history of the Pleasanton unit of the American Legion. Warren G. Atherton, state commander, was present and delivered at the dedication exercises an inspiring address. Lieutenant Governor Frank F. Merriam represented the state government, and he, too, gave a message to the audience of patriotic fervor. Merriam is one of the grand, clean men, only too rare today in politics. His presence added materially to the high order so characteristic of the entire proceedings dedicating the Memorial building, not only to the use of the Pleasanton post, but to the

TOWNSHIP PEA HARVEST HALTED BY STRIKERS

Agricultural Labor Trouble Makes First Appearance Here

For the first time in recent history of the township, organized labor troubles have been added to the burden of the farmers. The pea harvest has been seriously deterred by a wide strike of pea-pickers. According to local reports the trouble is the result of an attempt to organize the crop workers. The organization has not a well directed head, but is more in the form of pure agitation.

J. Lewis, prominent Centerville grower, says the method of the agitators is to travel about the area, exhorting the pickers to strike for a higher wage. The price being paid at present is from twenty to twenty-three cents per hamper. The strikers demand a minimum of thirty cents.

No violence has been reported, but many workers admit of being threatened with personal injury if they refused to join in the walk-out. Several large growers have found it necessary to have an armed attendant in their fields to discourage any effort on the part of the walking delegates to frighten their employees.

It is the general opinion of the growers that if no agreement can be reached with the strikers, the pea harvest will be completely stopped, since a picker's wage of thirty cents a hamper would be entirely impossible at present pea prices.

PLANS FOR NILES WILDFLOWER SHOW BEING COMPLETED

More Than Three Hundred Varieties Expected For Display

Plans are about complete to make of the 1933 Wild Flower Show, to be held April 23 and 24, the greatest exhibition yet attempted. The committee is confident that 300 or more varieties will be on display this year due to a more systematic method of covering the district. A great many citizens of Niles and vicinity have already offered their services to collect specimens, which greatly aids the Wild Flower committee, as in the past the most difficult part of this show was to collect specimens.

Anyone with a car, who wishes to assist in this part of the work will be welcomed by the committee. Areas from which specimens are collected has been divided into districts and each district will be worked by teams of three persons. In this way it is hoped that no specimen or rare variety will escape detection.

A committee on decoration, headed by E. D. Bristow, will have charge of decorating to bring out the full beauty of the display, which will add greatly to the appearance Another innovation is that varieties will be grouped by families, aiding greatly in identification which will aid many botanists who visit this annual display. This grouping will be in charge of W. E. Jones.

As in the past all identification and clasification will be done by botanists from the University of California.

NIZHNI NOVGOROD IS NOW "MAXIM GORKI"

Famous Russian Market Is Named for Novelist.

Washington.—After more than 700 years of fame as a great Russian market, Nizhni Novogorod recently was officially erased from the world map when the Soviet government renamed the city "Maxim Gorki," in honor of the Russian novelist, a native son.

"A city of 300,000 inhabitants, sprawling along the banks of the Oka and Volga rivers where they converge, Maxim Gorki is a husky child of water-borne commerce," says a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Long before the city became a railroad center and telegraph wires linked it with important commercial and industrial centers of Europe and Central Asia, the inhabitants of the Volga valley and the vast agricultural and mining regions penetrated by the many Volga tributaries, recognized Nizhni Novgorod's acessibility and made it their market place.

Site of Famous Fair.

"The city was not thrust into the world's commercial spotlight, however, until the early part of the Nineteenth century when it was made the permanent fair ground of the Volga valley fair. From ancient times merchants of the valley met to display their goods and to barter and trade. The site of the fair was frequently changed due to economic and political conditions. Nizhni Novgorod was chosen the fair ground in 1817 and, with the exception of the years from 1914 to 1922 when the World war and the Revolution interfered, the fair was held in the Volga metropolis every year until its final abandonment two years ago.

"Normally, or for ten and one-half months a year, Nizhni Novgorod was abustle with commerce, but in fair time—August 1 to September 15—it suddenly burst into even greater activity. It became a modern Babel, for merchants from many countries of the eastern hemisphere joined with the Russians in displaying their goods, wares and merchandise.

"The city's streets, hotel lobbies, railroad stations and shops echoed with the gayety of buyers and sellers and tourists of many races and tongues. The fair ground, normally a quiet, almost deserted area of stone buildings, suddenly awakened with 4,000 shops displaying an array of colorful merchandise ranging from tiny handmade trinkets to huge oriental rugs. Bulky commodities, such as iron, lumber and grain, were deposited on nearby islands. The turnover of the last few years of the fair amounted to about $100,000,000 annually. In 1927, only a few years after the fair had been reopened, more than 2,500 merchants took part.

Builds Great Plant.

"Recently Maxim Gorki has been called the 'Detroit of Russia' because an American automobile company has built the largest automobile plant in Europe about 15 miles up the Oka river. When the workers' town near the plant is completed the entire project will represent an outlay of more than $150,000,000. There are 23 main Detroit-like factory buildings and more than 50 different shops. A large part of the modern machinery in the plant was built in the United States.

"Although commerce has been the city's principal means of support, it early began to accumulate industrial plants. Its shipbuilding and repair yards help to supply and keep in condition many Volga boats. Nearby, in the lower part of the town, are factories where thousands of workers are employed in the production of chemicals, telephones, matches, textiles and flour.

"It is a climb of nearly 500 feet to the upper portion of Maxim Gorki, which is dominated by the Kremlin whose walls inclose one of the few remaining relics of the old Nizhni Novgorod—the Archangel cathedral, which was built in 1227. Many of the city's antiques fell before the persistent plundering of the Tartars in the Fourteenth century.

"From the Kremlin wall the traveler may get a splendid bird's-eye view of the lower town and the surrounding region. The wharves below are kept busy as Volga boats of all sizes and shapes from rowboats to steamers and huge barges come and go. On the opposite bank of the Oka, which is spanned by a pontoon bridge, is the old fair ground that has lost its glamor. Beyond the far bank of the Volga stretches a village-dotted area that ultimately rises into the peaks of the Ural mountains."

Maribel Vinson of Winchester, Mass., the champion girl skater, has an ambition to add to her laurels by becoming the sculling champ of the United States. She took up sculling at the Harvard summer school at Cambridge, Mass., and daily she is seen on the Charles river doing her stuff.

Patent Office Is Ahead of All Others on Income

The patent office is self-supporting, there being a surplus of receipts over expenditures in practically every year of operation. A report of the institute for government research states that the charges made by the patent office for its services and most of its publications usually aggregate more than the entire expense of operation, so that this bureau has become one of the revenue-producing organizations of the government. The accumulated surplus earnings of the patent office up to June 30, 1923, amounted to over $8,460,000. A recent act of congress states that the money required for that office shall be appropriated by law out of its revenues, except as otherwise provided by law. The commissioner of patents is appointed by the President, with the consent of the senate. The annual report of the patent office for the year ended June 30, 1932, showed that a record number of patents, 52,572, had been granted; it showed also that all of the 65 examining divisions were less than six months behind, a great advance over former conditions. The demand for economy makes it unlikely that the force of about 700 examiners will be increased in the near future. Statistics for 1930 showed 96,227 applications, 52,571 patents granted, 119,597 pending, 16,230 trademarks.

Airedale Is One of Most Popular of All Terriers

From mongrel to the most popular of all large terriers, at least in this country, in approximately half a century is the record that has been made by the airedale. This breed had its origin in Yorkshire, England, where its mongrel ancestors resulted from the interbreeding of the black-and-ton wire-haired terrier and the otter hound about sixty years ago. From a clever and dependable mongrel it has since been developed, by careful breeding, into the airedale terrier of today which generally meets the most exacting of requirements and is considered an all around dog hard to beat.

The airedale terrier has been used successfully for all kinds of purposes, from hunting lions in Africa to guarding and playing with children; and from herding sheep and cattle to drawing a sled in the Arctic. Lively, watchful, impetuous and unusually intelligent, this dog has all the qualities that go into the making of a lovable and useful dog companion.

Origin of Phrase "Sub Rosa"

The origin of the phrase "sub rosa" or "under the rose," implies secrecy and had its origin in 477 B. C. At that time, Pausanias, commander of the confederate fleet of the Spartans and the Athenians, was engaged in a secret plot with Xerxes for bringing Greece under the Persian rule. The plottings were carried on in a building connected to the temple of Minerva, the roof of which was a bower of roses, so that the plans, which were conducted with the utmost secrecy, were literally made "under the rose." It afterward became a custom among the Athenians to wear roses in their hair whenever they wished to communicate to one another a secret. Hence, the saying "sub rosa" among them, and since that time, among Christian nations.

Women Jurors Don't Sleep

"Then, too, I have never seen a woman juror asleep in the jury box," commented Judge Carl Weygandt of Cleveland in an article in the "Ohio Woman Voter," commenting on the desirability of women jurors. "The average woman is sound in her viewpoint and regards her responsibilities as a juror more seriously than does the average man; they are keen in judging the credibility of witnesses and quick to detect fraud; and mixed juries are more likely to return verdicts consistent with the law and the evidence in the case," said Judge Weygandt. "I have never heard a lawyer or a judge express himself as opposed to having women serve on our juries," he concluded.

Not Qualified, Chose Death

Unusual modesty was shown by a man at an arms factory at Prague, Czechoslovakia. He had been promoted, with an increase of salary, but told his "chief" he did not feel qualified for such important work. He was assured of the confidence of the management and was advised not to turn down his opportunity. His associates all thought he was "lucky" but the new departmental manager left the factory and drowned himself rather than take on his new work. He was the father of two children.—Montreal Herald.

Many Flowers

AGNES OSBORN felt that, at last, she could safely say that an office could be artistic, homey, attractive and yet be the place where successful business was carried on.

She surveyed the room in which she sat. French gray walls, amethyst rug and hangings made a background for the gray desks and chairs, the small gray tea-wagon with its purple china and silver.

She had started this employment business on what her brother called "a shoestring," but little by little her business had grown until she was known far and wide as a most successful woman in her line.

She was still young, and many who came in contact with her wondered that she had not married.

They did not know that the only man she had ever cared for had been married and that fate had unkindly taken him out of her path.

Absorption in her work had healed the hurt, but nothing had ever come along to take the place of her early romance. Sometimes she accused herself of having hired young Frank Barlow because he reminded her in certain expressions, of the other man. Frank was only two years her junior but she had taught him nearly all that he knew about the publicity and advertising end of her employment business and she felt a superior attitude toward him, in years.

Their work brought them very closely in contact. They had long conferences together.

Agnes always had flowers in her office. In a lavender vase on the tea-wagon there were a rose or two, sweet peas or daisies. In a bowl on her own desk there were always fragrant blossoms. And always, about the person of Agnes, there seemed to be a subtle fragrance as of many flowers.

One spring evening when the office had been very busy and there had been little time for quiet, peaceful, concentrated thought, Agnes had a fancy that she would like to go down to her private office. There was no place in the world in which she felt so much at rest, so completely at home as in her business environment where she had at last surrounded herself with the things and colors that radiate happiness.

"Why shouldn't I have a lovely office?" she would ask. "I spend the greater part of my day in it. It is home to me."

She entered the outer hall quietly, and looked through into her own sanctum through the open door. A silver crescent moon was framed between the soft amethyst hangings of the western window. A perfume from the flowers greeted her. It was warm and soothing. She stood drinking in the beauty and peace of it all. A strange loneliness caught at her heart-strings and a sigh escaped her before she stepped within the room.

Then she started back. Sitting in her chair, his head buried in the smock she always left hanging in the office—was Frank Barlow. What could be wrong? Why was he here? He—

She felt herself breathing quickly. Could it be that he—he cared for her?

She heard him move. Had he heard her?

She switched on the light in the outer office and he quickly rose to his feet.

"Miss Osborn," he stammered.

"Are you working?" she asked, as calmly as she could.

"No—not yet. I came down because I felt that perhaps I might do a little work. There seems nothing else half so interesting as—"

He could not go on. He knew from the way in which she was looking at him, that she had seen him with his face buried in her smock.

Agnes sat down in the big gray leather chair near the desk.

"Do you care so much about—the business, Frank?" she asked.

He did not reply at once, but his fingers tightened on the folds of the garment he had tried to conceal.

"I might as well tell you that I have been trying for months to keep from loving you so entirely, so completely, so utterly," he said. "I have come down here, night after night, just to touch the fragrant garment that is so much a part of you, to sit in your chair, to breathe in the personality of you that makes this office a heaven."

"Frank—Frank," was all Agnes, the business woman, could say.

"I know I have no right. I realize that you look on me only as a business help that—"

"That I depend on you, entirely. That, unconsciously, you have been making me lean on you," added Agnes. "I did not know until I saw you with your head on my desk that—that I—"

He had jumped to his feet and was leaning over her in the moonlit office.

"Is it possible that you—care?" he asked.

"It is impossible that I should not," she said.

A long time afterwards he said: "And I have received employment, Miss Osborn?"

"Permanent," she said.

Silver Dollar of 1804 Is Rarest of American Coins

The 1804 silver dollar is the rarest of all American coins. There were some 20,000 of them minted, which seems to be a goodly number. But just why this coin is so rare is told by George G. Evans in his "Illustrated History of the United States Mint":

"The scarcity of this dollar was owing to the sinking of a China-bound vessel having on board almost the entire mintage of 1804 dollars in lieu of Spanish milled dollars. In those days American dollars were being carried to China to compete with the Spanish dollars which circulated in that country."

The history asserts that there are not more than seven or eight genuine 1804 dollars extant, and the coin has become known as "the king of American rarities."

The originals are from but one obverse and one reverse die. A draped bust of Liberty faces right, the head bound with a fillet, the hair flowing. There are six stars before and seven behind the bust, and above it the word "Liberty." On the reverse is a heraldic eagle bearing on his breast a broad shield, in his beak a scroll with the words "E Pluribus Unum," in his right talon twelve arrows, and in his left an olive branch. There is an arc of clouds extending between the tips of his outstretched wings, and below this thirteen stars. This side is inscribed United States of America. The edge of the coin is lettered "one hundred cents one dollar or unit."

The best copy of this coin is in the cabinet of the United States mint. A few restrikes were made in 1858 and between 1860 and 1869. Many of these were destroyed, and dies were also, in 1869. The restrikes are also very valuable.

Asserts Ideal Bridegroom Is Man of Love Affairs

The ideal bridegroom is a man who has accumulated—and discarded—five or six love affairs, Prof. Erdman Harris of the Union Theological Seminary of New York declared.

Addressing a conference on the "ideal husband," participated in by 50 men and women students of eastern colleges, Professor Harris said:

"In studying the masculine side of marriage, I have considered 200 cases. I find that if a man can't fall in love without apologizing to his mother for it, he is not a good marriage risk.

"A man who has had sisters is a good marriage risk.

"The best marriage risk is the man who has had at least a mild love affair. If he has had five or six affairs, it is better.

"It is necessary that the man have some knowledge of sex, too.

"A man who is easy to room with; easy to play with, is a better risk than one who isn't."

Gasoline Vapor

One gallon of gasoline at 60 degrees F. is said to average 6.15 pounds in weight. According to Mechanical Engineer's Handbook, one pound of gasoline vapor at 62 degrees F. and at atmospheric pressure has a volume of 4.2 cubic feet. At this rate, a gallon of gasoline would produce about 25.8 cubic feet of vapor. The gas ignited in an automobile cylinder is of course a very large amount of air. It has been stated that if one gallon of gasoline be completely changed to vapor, it will render the air in a room 21 by 10 by 10 feet explosive; or a quart for a room 8 by 8 by 8 feet. One authority has estimated that automobile engines are able to utilize less than 5 per cent of the tremendous energy stored up in gasoline, the other 95 per cent being either thrown away entirely or used up in friction.

Birth of American Navy

The American navy came into existence in 1775 after the close investment of Boston by Washington had cut off all supplies to the British troops, save such as might arrive by water. To intercept these, some small vessels were armed and manned by New England seamen, first under the auspices of Rhode Island and Connecticut, and afterward by authority of the congress which organized a naval committee with John Adams at its head. These little craft not only deprived the enemy of succor, but captured enough prizes to furnish the Colonial army with war material, without which it could not have continued hostilities.

Calls Only in the Spring

The "bob-white" call is rarely heard after the spring hatching season. From that time on until the following spring the chief call used by the quail is the one that helps keep their families together. This close family association is seldom broken up earlier unless the birds are scattered by hunters.

Status of Turkish Women Has Been Revolutionized

Much more than was first supposed follows the dropping of the veil from the face of Turkish women under the regime of Ghazi Mustafa Kemal, president of the Republic of Turkey.

With this innovation came many others—women police and women lawyers, as well as women judges.

What a revolutionary change this is becomes more striking when it is recalled that only ten years ago a Turkish woman could appear unveiled only before other women, her father and brothers. At fifteen or sixteen she was married by arrangement to a man she had never seen. Her future was precarious, however, for her husband could get rid of her at a moment's notice. He had merely to say he had no further need of her, and the marriage was annulled. Writes the Turkey correspondent of the London Times:

"As soon as the Turkish republic was firmly established, polygamy and the veil were abolished, and marriage and divorce laws based on those of the most highly civilized countries were adopted.

"Today women are admitted to the universities on an equal footing with men, and are eligible for practically all the professions. They vote at municipal elections, and it is expected that the parliamentary franchise will be extended to them. They mingle freely with men in the streets, in restaurants, dance halls and cinemas; many are employed in shops and offices."—Detroit Free Press.

Lakes of Killarney

William Bowers Bourn of San Mateo, Calif., presented to the Irish Free State the huge tract of land containing the Lakes of Killarney. The Killarney estate belonged to Lord Kenmare's family, whose ancestral seat was Killarney castle. In 1913 the ancient castle was swept by fire and left in ruins. By 1930 the owners of the property were no longer able to pay taxes and Killarney went for sale on the auction block. It was purchased by Mr. Bourn, who returned it to the Irish government.

Robot Night Lamp Does Many Stunts

New York.—The magical powers of Aladdin's famous lamp are rivaled by an ingenious night lamp, which by automatically controlling electric circuits, performs the service of a maid or valet, a general housekeeper and night nurse. It will turn on or off the electric lights to the minute, as well as the heat, or your ventilating device. It starts the radio at any desired time, turns on the heat in your electric pad, starts the water boiling in your electric stove—in short, stops or starts on the minute every electric attachment of the household.

SEE BIG INCREASE IN COUNTERFEITING

Secret Service Reports Improved Methods.

Washington.—Counterfeiting has increased approximately 25 per cent during the last year, due to continued depression and discovery of new methods to alter and imitate currency and coins.

It was learned recently that criminals are using extensively chemical processes which remove all coloring and printing on $1 bills and enable them to substitute larger figures in the corners of bank notes.

Another new development in counterfeiting is the increased production of spurious bills of small denominations rather than $10 and $20 notes. Large amounts of small imperfect coins also are appearing in widely-scattered sections of the country.

Secret-service officials said that despite this improved technique they had succeeded in checking the increase in counterfeiting which began in the summer of 1931. During the 1932 fiscal year 2,139 arrests were made, compared with 1,524 the previous year. Agents this year seized $540,538 of counterfeit currency and $49,773 of coins.

One of the chemicals used by counterfeiters reduces genuine bills to the original silk paper. They then use engravings to print currency of higher denominations. In other processes the numbers 1, 5 and 10 are removed or altered to 10, 20, 50, or 100. The words on currency are also changed, since the ink can easily be removed.

During the fiscal year 17 new issues of counterfeit currency appeared, as compared with 11 in 1932. The 17 new issues were found to have 70 variations.

Secret-service activities show that counterfeiting has spread to new sections of the country and that the service must widen its battle against currency and coin violators. Year after year counterfeiters advance in their methods of production and distribution and their movements become more veiled and difficult to check, officials said.

Prince Offers a Trophy for Plane Circling World

Paris.—A trophy for the fastest flight around the world, whether by airplane or airship, has been offered by Prince Bibesco, president of the International Aeronautic federation here.

Under the conditions, the course to be followed must include Karachi, in India, Tokyo, San Francisco, and New York, then back to the starting point, which either may be London, Paris, Berlin, Rome, or Bucharest. The prince always has been enthusiastic in encouraging long-distance flights.

The round-the-world air race will involve a flight of 22,000 miles. The trophy will be won by the first competitor who completes the trip at an average speed of at least 100 kilometers hourly. This is about 62.41 miles per hour and much slower than Post and Gatty's time.

Landings must be made at the four specified cities, but there is no other restrictions. Fueling in the air may be made, so that any competitor can, if he wishes, make only four landings.

Citizenship Requirements Affecting Wives, Children

It requires either birth in this country for full rights of citizenship or naturalization of parents before children are twenty-one years of age as required by "Act of Congress." In the latter case the children do not require naturalization by the court nor are they required to take out citizenship papers.

Children of parents who are citizens, but born in foreign countries, are on the same basis as those born in this country.

Since 1922 a foreign-born woman, marrying a citizen of this country, is automatically a citizen. A woman shall not become a citizen if she marries a man who has been naturalized after September 22, 1922.

A women citizen of the United States does not lose her citizenship by marriage to a man of foreign birth if married after September 22, 1922, unless she renounces her citizenship before a court having jurisdiction over the naturalization of aliens.—The New Era.

Linen Made From Flax Plant

Linen is made from the flax plant, either from the line fibers, which are long, shiny and cylindric, or from the tow fibers, which are short, rough and easily broken. In selecting linen by the yard, one may ravel out a bit and note the length, smoothness and texture of the threads. For pieces that are already made up, one must depend on the reliability of the stamping and the reputation of the firm.

There are three main weaves: single damask, double damask and homespun. Single damask is made by each filling thread skipping four warp threads and going under the fifth. Double damask is made by each filling thread skipping seven warp threads and going under the eighth. Double damask is the stronger and has a finer and smooth appearance and a greater luster. Homespun weave is an alternate over and under weave.—Hygeia.

Gelatin No Adulterant

Gelatin is the most costly ingredient in ice cream aside from the flavor, according to W. E. Ayres of the department of dairy industry at Cornell university. It is not put into ice cream to cheapen it or to give the appearance of a superior product, but serves two distinct purposes. It is put in to prevent the sugar of the milk from forming large sugar granules which make the ice cream sandy and gritty, and it is used to prevent the formation of large ice crystals which would make the ice cream grainy. Only enough gelatin is added to establish a "gel" when the mixture is cooled to near the freezing point. The maximum amount that can be used is established by law at one-half of 1 per cent.

Wood Used by Indians for Bows

The wood used by American Indians for making bows was ash, birch, cedar, cottonwood, elm, hickory, oak, walnut, willow, witch-hazel and yew, depending on the wood available and the custom in various tribes. The Indians in sections of the country preferred second growth hickory. The wood must be seasoned at least three years before it is suitable for this purpose. Yew imported from Spain or Italy now is favored for bows.

COUNTRY CLUB IN PAST PRESIDENTS PROGRAM TUESDAY

Entertainment Planned and Presented By Mrs. Geo. Coit

Ladies of the Country Club of Washington Township celebrated Past President's Day at the club house in Centerville on Tuesday, April 11. Mrs. George Coit planned the afternoon and was responsible for flowers and decorations, ceremony for the past presidents, and the tea which was served following the program. The ladies extended to her their appreciation and gave her a rising vote of thanks.

The club house was beautifully decorated. There were many flowers, well chosen and arranged. Mrs. Coit expressed especial appreciation to Harry Elsey, who donated potted plants and co-operated splendidly in securing the rest of the flowers.

First number of the program was a poem, written by Mrs. Coit, and set to the music of "The Lost Chord." It was read by the President Mrs. Josephine A. Brown, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Franklin Brown, Jr. Following this, screens were pulled aside disclosing a large vacant chair. On either side were tall baskets filled with white lillies. Above the chair were arranged photos of the four club presidents who have passed away. Four white candles stood on a table in front of the chair. These candles were lighted by Misses Barbara Snow, and Florence Marie Braun, as Mrs. Brown read the service written by Mrs. Coit. Mrs. Robert B. Boyer sang "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Shinn. The ladies stood for a moment in silent tribute.

Screens were drawn and chairs placed in a semi-circle in front of them. Mrs. Frank Dusterberry then conducted services for living past presidents. As she called each name and read a verse one of the past presirents was escorted to her chair by two little girls, Barbara Snow and Florence Braun. After she was seated she was presented with a beautiful corsage by dainty little Miss Nancy Chadbourne, three years old.

Past presidents at the meeting were: Mrs. Grace McClure Huxley, San Francisco; Mrs. Emily Mowry Hobby, Palo Alto; Mrs. Lyda T. Thane, Niles; Mrs. Fleda O. Bunting, Centervile; Mrs. Forence M. Hudson, Niles; Mrs. Blanche B. Kirk, Niles; Mrs. Francis Robie, Alvarado; Mrs. Jennie May, Alvarado; Miss Mary I. Brown, Newark; Mrs. Martha D. Chadbourne, Centerville; Mrs. Hazel Pond, Irvington, and Mrs. Winifred Bendel of Decoto.

Mrs. Boyer, accompanied by Miss Shinn, sang three numbers. The entire group sang Auld Lang Syne. Mrs. Fleda O. Bunting read a poem about the organizing of the Country Club, written by her mother. Mrs. Lyda T. Thane read a poem about Indians, which was written by her mother. She then gave a very interesting and vivid account of early days of the Country Club of Washington township and of women who worked in the club.

Tea and cookies were served and a social half-hour enjoyed following the program.

ENTERTAIN FRIENDS

On last Saturday evening, Miss Anna Millicent Shinn entertained about twenty young friends at a buffet supper at her home in Niles. Supper was followed by dancing. Young people invited were: Misses, Betty Robinson, Leona Solon, Marjory Griffen, Peggy Munger, Eleanor and Rosalie Harrold, Irma Hodges, Bernice Weber, Catherine Cobb, and Katharine Rathbone, and Messrs, Robert and Thomas Whipple, Jack Rathbone, Peter Bunting, Vernon Elsworth, Charles Myrick, Harry and Morgan Cesari, Milton Durham, George Jorgenson and Robert Salz.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Mrs. Carrie L. Emerson wish to express to the many friends their heartfelt thanks for the tokens of sympathy tendered them during their recent bereavement. A13c

ALVARADO WEEKLY NEWS

POP'S ALL-STARS NOW MANAGED BY JOSEPH JACINTO

Joseph Jacinto, former catcher for East Oakland Ball Club, is now managing the Pops All-Stars, a class "B" team.

The team which has been winning steadily, met with defeat at the hands of Hayward Athletic team by a score of 9 to 2 on Sunday afternoon at the Centerville high school diamond. The score remained 9 to 0 until the ninth inning when the two runs were made.

After a meeting which was held on Monday evening in the Smith garage building the following lineup was decided upon and will be used when the team plays on April 23:

Arthur Silveria was selected as publicity manager.

The team is by no means an easy one to defeat. Hubert Jacinto and James Berry having already played in class "A" ball, Stanley Roderick having been one of the best of the Washington Union high school players, and all the boys showing surprising baseball ability, makes them dangerous antagonists.

The manager is working steadily on plans to have a diamond in Alvarado in the near future.

NEW GROUP PLANS FOR TOYON BRANCH OF CHILD HOSPITAL

Interesting Meet at Home of Mrs. J. C. Shinn Monday

Toyon branch of the Children's Hospital met with Mrs. J. C. Shinn Monday. Plans for the proposed food sale were adandoned, and it was decided that a rummage sale would probably be held in the near future instead, with a second rummage sale following during the fall months.

After the business session, Roland Bendel, a member of the Southern Alameda County Mosquito Abatement League, gave a talk on progress made by the league in this region. Some of those present reported that facts and figures presented by Bendel were most interesting and enlightening. Special guests at this gathering were Mrs. Thomas Huxley, Mrs. Charles Shinn and Mrs. Jenny De Bussey, all of whom are well remembered here as former residents.

SMUDGING STARTED IN WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP

Local farmers can no longer gaze with smug satisfaction upon the morning pall that hangs over the southern part of the valley; the practice of smudging has made its appearance here.

George King, who farms in the fastnesses of Stony Brook Canyon, has just purchased three hundred gallons of stove oil to be used for the protection of his fruit trees. The late season, and its accompanying frosts have done considerable damage to vegetable crops, but heretofore little injury to fruits has occurred.

Local horticulturists hope that Mr. King's precautions will not be necesary in this valley.

C. OF C. DELEGATES AT SUNNYVALE BASE DEDICATION RITES

Special Entertainment Is Planned for Next Weekly Meet

At the regular weekly meeting of the Niles Chamber of Commerce Monday, the Washington Union High school investigation committee made its final report, and was discharged.

In the absence of William Jones A. J. Petsche reported upon the meeting of the Wild Flower Show committee held at the home of J. E. Townsend last week. Petsche said that efforts were being made to publicize the event as widely as possible. It is the aim of the chamber to record a much higher attendance at this year's display than at the one of 1932. For advice and assistance in arranging the showrooms at Rose's garage, where the show is to be held E. E. Dias, Niles contractor, was appointed to the Wild Flower committee.

The Niles chamber was extended an invitation by the United States Naval Board to attend the dedication ceremonies at the Naval dirigible base at Sunnyvale on Wednesday. Chairman F. V. Jones called on members of the chamber to compose the representation from Niles. Those who attended included Srpervisor Ralph V. Richmond, A. J. Gomes.

The program for next Monday's meeting was discussed. Something of a more elaborate nature than is customary is planned. A small entertainment, the details of which will be worked out later, will probably be presented. Judge Silva will be chairman of the meeting, at which the final adoption of the by-laws will be approved.

This medicine does a lot for children

Have you a youngster who doesn't eat enough—isn't gaining—isn't getting on in school? Sluggish children need a stimulant. Indeed, the healthiest child's stomach, liver and bowels need stimulating at times.

Here's a preparation that stimulates the little system in a perfectly harmless manner—it is, in fact, a family doctor's prescription. It is used on the youngest children—even babies—with such happy results that a million mothers use it. The first thing it does is cleanse the system of all lingering poisons that make children bilious or sluggish. (They will never need any other cathartic, and their little bowels move regularly and thoroughly without any other help.) Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the name of this famous prescription. Every druggist keeps it ready for use.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made of fresh herbs, active senna, and purest pepsin, and is so pleasant-tasting and pleasant acting that the children love to take it. There is no better regulator of the bowels for anyone, of any age. Whole families rely on it. Older people find it to be the very best protection from auto-intoxication.

Syrup Pepsin has the same action at any age. Mild enough for babies. In adult doses, it is strong enough to keep any man or woman in condition.

Editorial Comment

NORMAN H. PARKS, Publisher Register

city in which it is located and the territory within the radius of its influence.

The Township Register wishes to felicitate Morris Elsnab, commander, and the members upon the realization of their dream. On his behalf and their behalf, this paper wishes to publicly thank all the fine men and women who led the initial drive for the structure, and followed up, step by step, their advantage until the construction of the Memorial building was authorized, and its completion finally realized. Supervisor Ralph Richmond perhaps did more than any other one individual to secure the appropriation making possible the splendid edifice, now the home of American Legion Post No. 237.

ONLY REFORM CAN SILENCE US

It is a grave mistake, this idea that the Township Register can be silenced by coercion, and tactics bordering on blackmail. It can't be done. In our twenty-five years of newspaper experience we have never laid down our pen in the face of threats nor have we been forced to do so through financial reasons. The writer tries very hard to be right, and to champion only the better things in politics and civic and domestic life. He errs, naturally, at times. But the mistake is not of the heart, but the head.

If the school political machine wishes to silence the Township Register there is one, and only one way that it can be done—cofrect the abuses at Washington Union high school.

This paper is committed to the accomplishment of the following reforms:

Both full or part-time teachers eliminated from bus driving.

All night school teaching discontinued with the exception of Americanization classes, and these under the direction of a substitute teacher, or some instructor working only part time.

Elimination of music teacher and athletic director until such time as the country has recovered somewhat economically.

The junking of the printing plant at the school. A shameful waste of taxpayers' money, and even in good times, an insult to intelligent school administration.

Substantial cut in teachers' salaries.

When these things are done, or assurance is given that they will be done next year, the Register withdraws from the contest, with congratulations to the board that a thing well done, though a year late, is commendable nevertheless.

But get no foolish ideas in your craniums. The Register cannot be befuddled, bamboozled or financially ruined. It is a tough old paper in close to its fiftieth year. Those who go out of their way to do it dirt may, and very likely will, live to regret their indiscretion. It holds no malice, neither does it turn the other cheek, but rather dons its armor for combat. It speaks each week to thousands, and its words are true.

Those who are right go doubly armed, and the Register on one thing, practically everyone admits, is right—

SCHOOL COSTS MUST COME DOWN!

Decoto Youth Is Fined By Judge Charles Gale

Because he was charged with three violations of the motor vehicle act, John Estevanovich, of Decoto, had his operator's license suspended for one hundred twenty days, when he appeared before Judge Charles A. Gale Tuesday morning.

Estevanovich was picked up by Officer Barron when he failed to stop at a stop sign near Pleasanton. In answer to the officer's questions, it seems a wrong address crept into the matter, and when he failed to appear when he was supposed to, the court could find room for little sympathy with him.

Some Fellows Have Style That Keeps You Guessing

Among the people you meet, you now and then run across one that puzzles you. He doesn't seem to fit into the average run of human beings, and you are at your wit's end about this newcomer. This is a critical moment in the ordinary run of human affairs, a critical moment for you.

Did you ever think of this? Those who turn out to be puzzles are, after all, worth puzzling with. The individual who has so many sides to his nature that you cannot see them all at once is likely to be a somebody. In other words, he has personality plus. To say the least, he is interesting. He keeps you guessing.

The next time you meet a fellow who is continually displaying unexpected traits, don't be discouraged. Stick by him. You may learn something. And the thing that you are likely to learn is that you are not only the puzzled, but also the puzzler.

It is something of a puzzle how and why the majority of human beings get into a rut and finally have no sides to them at all. The man with only a few sides is totally unable to get the most out of his human surroundings. If you can't recognize and account for the many sidedness of human nature, you have simply lost your own personality.—Washington Star.

Cook to Italian King Tells Dessert Recipe

Rome.—Here is a recipe given by Commendatore Petini, first cook to King Victor Emmanuel of Italy. It makes a dainty dish to set before a king and yet it is quite simple.

Peel and stone ripe apricots putting in the place left by the stone a lump of almond paste. Roll them in finely powdered biscuits, dip them in the beaten yolk of an egg and then in fine bread crumbs.

Melt butter in an earthenware, fireproof shallow dish, put in your apricots and dry them fast.

Drain in the usual way and serve with fine sugar flavored with vanilla.

Famous Old Turnpike Proves a Death Trap

Boston.—The historic Newburyport turnpike, about 30 miles long and connecting Boston with Newburyport, is one of the nation's deadliest highways.

During the past four years, 343 persons have been killed and 20,523 injured in automobile accidents on or near the 'pike.

Rules Ladies May Kiss Male Patients

Vienna.—Women visitors to hospitals are permitted to kiss male patients, even if these are married a court in Vienna ruled. Paul Johannes, lying in a Viennese hospital, where he had been operated on, frequently was visited by a girl friend of his wife. His visitor, a good-looking widow of about thirty, always kissed the man when coming and leaving. His wife considered the widow's behavior to be too "charitable" and filed a suit of divorce. The court, however, did not see a default in the kisses of the young widow and dismissed the case.

Throwing Wood From 1869 R. R. Tenders Prohibited

Strict regulations regarding "the throwing of wood from tenders of engines" and the taking on of fuel and water are set forth in an old time-table of the Jeffersonville, Madison & Indianapolis railroad, found among old records and papers in Indianapolis. The time-table was put into effect November 11, 1869.

The back of the time-table is covered with printed instructions for railroad employees. Trains running south were to wait thirty minutes at a meeting station for trains running north. If, after thirty minutes, the expected train did not come, the south-bound train was to have the right of way and "proceed carefully."

The speed of freight, "extra" and stock trains was never to exceed fifteen miles an hour. All trains were to slow down to eight miles in passing stations where no stops were made.

"Throwing wood from tenders of engines while the same are in motion is to be strictly forbidden. Wood that cannot be used in the furnace must be unloaded at the stations where the engine is supplied with fuel and water," according to instructions.

New Member of Wren Family

An entirely new type of marsh wren has been identified at Charleston, S. C., through the research of two Charleston naturalists. It has been named "telmatodytes palutris waynei" in honor of Arthur T. Wayne, now dead, who discovered several new species about 1900. It is exceptionally dark, its head and nape a sooty black, the flanks brown, the tail heavily barred, and the sides of the breast barred. It frequents the rice fields.

Lights of NEW YORK — By WALTER TRUMBULL

In these days of the twelve-mile limit, strange things drift ashore. On a village beach one morning the inhabitants discovered several wooden cases. The natives hastened to carry them away. In the first place, they didn't want their nice beach littered up and in the second place they wished to save the coast guard any possible trouble. One village housewife was pleased to see that her husband had done his part by lugging home a damp and heavy box and hastened to help him open it. Investigation disclosed that it was bottled goods. The husband drew the cork and took the first medicinal sample.

"Gosh, ma," he exclaimed, "it's nothing but sirup!"

Having verified this diagnosis, the woman looked at the label. It read "Curacao."

"Well," she said, "there's a use for everything. It'll do for pancakes."

So they have been using it instead of store sirup. When they are made right, pancakes certainly are good. The members of the family have become regular pancake fans. Even grandma, who never used to care for cakes, is eating them now.

The office of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, where she does her editorial work, is strictly businesslike except for one thing. Mrs. Roosevelt doesn't use a modern desk. Hers is an antique such as is found in old Colonial houses. On it stands a silver vase filled with flowers and over it hangs a framed photograph of the President-Elect. The desks of her secretaries, assistants and stenographers are of the usual office type.

One of the most affectionate dogs I ever saw is Peter, the bull terrier belonging to Don Marquis. He won't let his master out of his sight and even tries to sit in his lap when he is writing.

A white-haired, courtly, old gentleman once called on Mr. Marquis and announced himself as "a friend of Bill." This didn't exactly register, as Mr. Marquis has hundreds of friends of all classes and several of them are named Bill. Too polite to press the matter further, Mr. Marquis regaled the stranger lavishly. After rounds of entertainment, the old man said:

"You have been very kind to me. I appreciate it and Bill will appreciate it. To prove that I am grateful I am going to show you some things and you never will have to work again. Have you a pack of cards?"

It turned out that "Bill" was resting at Warden Lawes' place at Sing Sing and that the benevolent old party was a card sharp and confidence man.

I wonder what has become of all the stick pins men used to wear in their ties; of the bowknots that used to support women's watches; of children's Little Lord Fauntleroy suits.

A reporter met a crusty old financier, leading his dog on a walk for exercise. The reporter spoke to the man, who growled ferociously in return. Stooping down and petting the dog, the reporter said, "Anyhow, the dog doesn't growl."

During the recent political campaign one red-headed girl handled a party pay roll, which amounted to more than $20,000 a week, and there was not a single complaint.

The Gentleman

"My own idea," he says, "is that neither birth, nor riches, nor education, nor manners suffice to constitute a gentleman, and that specimens are to be found at the plow, the loom, the forge, in the ranks, before the mast, as well as in the officers' mess rooms, the learned professions and the upper house itself. A gentleman is courteous, kindly, brave and high-principled, considerate toward the weak and self-possessed among the strong. High-minded and unselfish, he does to others as he would they should do unto him, and shrinks from the meanness of taking advantage of his neighbor, a man or woman, friend or foe, as he would from the contamination of cowardice, duplicity, tyranny or any other blackguardism."—G. Whyte-Melville.

Wealth Measured by Herd

The wealth of the Laplander is measured by the number of reindeer he possesses. These animals yield to their owners milk, meat and leather which is used for making boots, clothing, tents and boats, and the sinews of the reindeer are used as rope. As a pack animal the reindeer has at least one advantage over the use of dogs; the reindeer finds its food where it rests, but the driver of a dog team must take food for his dogs along with him.

Armadillos Fast Dirt Flingers

The armadillo, that strange armored creature of South America belonging to the family of animals known as ant eaters, has powerful claws with which it can dig faster than a man. The story is told of a hunter who determined to dig an armadillo out of its burrow. He finally succeeded, but he had worked for eight hours and dug six deep pits before he caught up with his quarry.

London.—Officials of the British Board of Trade and Customs are in the throes of a deep controversy over the definition to be given birds' nests.

Soldering an Ancient Art

Telephone practices carried on hundreds of times daily in metropolitan cities were used during the Eleventh century—800 years before the invention of the telephone. Soldering wire joints to insure good contact was one of the first practices of Dr. Alexander G. Bell, inventor of the telephone, and his assistant, Thomas A. Watson, in the manufacture of the first telephone instrument in 1876.

Must Think for Ourselves to Have Comfort of Mind

You cannot expect to have a comfortable mind if you don't prepare and work for it. Letting your thoughts just meander through without asking for their tickets of admission is laying yourself open to a good deal of trouble. Many indiscriminate thoughts, good and otherwise, come into our minds as a result of outside influences and suggestions, and if we have no method of dealing with them how can we expect to be sure just where we are? It is really an untidy and careless way of living. Actually, we are not thinking for ourselves; we are letting others think for us. Of course, the thoughts and influences we pick up from others may be good, helpful, constructive. On the other hand, they may be bad, discouraging, destructive. If we have no system of control over these things, we run a grave risk.—G. H. G., in Tit-Bits.

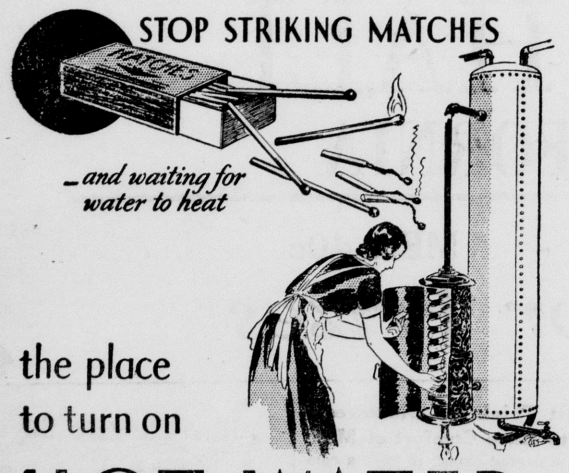
STOP STRIKING MATCHES



...and waiting for water to heat

the place to turn on

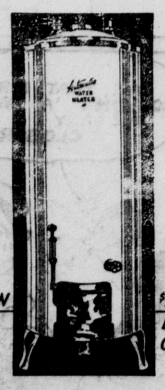
HOT WATER is at the faucet!

OF COURSE it is not the mere striking of matches that makes the old-fashioned tank type of water heater such a nuisance. It is because someone always has to light the heater. It is because someone always has to wait for the water to heat, and always has to remember to turn off the water heater.

With an Automatic Gas water heater all this is different. You turn on hot water at the faucet. You learn to take its service for granted, a part of the modern living you enjoy. The first month of service is always a revelation—you wonder how you ever put up with any other kind of hot water service in your home.

There is no starting or stopping for anyone to remember. It is quiet, dependable, absolutely carefree. And all this for less cost per gallon of hot water than you pay for your present unsatisfactory hot water service.

Judge this Automatic service of hot water in your home for yourself; go and see the new Automatic Hot Water Heaters on display in the nearest P. G. & E. office or at your dealer's store. They are so easy to buy. As little as $4.85 down and $3.85 a month will place one in your home.



Natural Gas cuts the former cost of gas water heating as much as 53%.

MEMORIAL DEDICATION AT PLEASANTON SUNDAY

Legionaires and State Officials Participate In Ceremony

With state, county and city officials joining hand in hand with Legon and Auxiliary members, the beautiful Veterans Memorial building in Pleasanton was dedicated Sunday.

Lieutenant Governor Frank E. Merriam; State Commander of the Legion Warren Atherton; State Adjutant James Fiske; and Area President Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards were among the dignataries present at the ceremonies.

Promptly at twelve noon, the Pleasanton Legionaires and Auxiliary, assisted by social and civic leaders of the county and of the town of Pleasanton, were hosts at a luncheon to the distinguished visitors at Letham's cafe. Sixty people joined in the luncheon to pay tribute to the dignitaries of the day.

At one thirty a most impressive flag raising ceremony took place immediately in front of the building. With a gentle breeze unfurling the Stars and Stripes as they proudly went to the top of the flag staff, the crowd stood at attention while the high school orchestra played the National Anthem.

The program inside the building got under way at 2 o'clock and was opened by the orchestra playing America. A colorful display of flags advanced up each side of the auditorium to cross at the front of the audience. Legion posts of the tenth district participated in this ceremony. Reverend Cross gave the invocation, and he was followed by Morris Elsnab, commander of the Pleasanton American Legion, who welcomed the people on behalf of the veterans and introduced Claude Freeman as master of ceremonies.

Lieutenant Governor Merriam was introduced, and gave a most interesting talk on Veterans legislature and Memorials from the standpoint of state officials. R. V. Richmond, supervisor from this district was introduced, and on behalf of the board of supervisors he presented the building to the veterans of Amador Valley. Walter Nilson, chairman of the building commission, accepted the building on behalf of the veterans, and Mayor Pickard accepted the building for the public.

A. J. Hansen, briefly, but in a most entertaining manner gave a history of the Pleasanton post. Mrs. J. M. Perry, gold star mother, in a beautiful little talk expressed her appreciation of being enabled to visit the grave of her son, in Flanders fields.

Warren G. Atherton gave a most eloquent dedication address that was thoroughly appreciated by all who have the nations welfare at heart.

The audience stood in thirty seconds of silence as a tribute to the war dead. and Mrs. Pelle pronounced the benediction. Following the playing of the Star Spangled Banner, the building was thrown open to the public for inspection.

To Ray Ewart, general chairman of the arrangements committee, must go the credit for making the affair the success it was. Long hours of thought and consideration went into the preparation of the plans for the day, and the effient manner in which the event was handled was due to the fine organization work which Ray accomplished. Capable assistance was given by every Legion and Auxiliary member, and to each one must go a great deal of credit and appreciation.

The ceremony is over, and the legion and the town may well look back on the day of the dedication as one of eherished thoughts, and of work well done. In their new home the American Legion will carry on their duties in remembrance of the buddies who are sleeping in Flanders fields.
